

WHY JOIN THE AMERICAN LIBRARY IN PARIS 10 RUE DE L'ÉLYSÉE

Because, founded by the American Library Association, in soldiers' huts during wartime, it is a living monument to American dead.

Because, international knowledge must precede international peace, and, unique in Europe, it is performing a patriotic service in furnishing immediate, precise, free information on American ideals, history, commerce, to anyone who asks.

Because, it contains the books you have been wanting to read, 60,000 of them, and 300 current periodicals, and for you and your children, abroad as at home, no entertainment is so inexpensive as reading, no recreation more constructive, no satisfaction so enduring.

Because, it is an out-station of American culture, sending books to 154 schools, aiding younger "American Libraries" in eleven countries, maintaining eight public reading rooms, giving free cards to students, professors and journalists.

Membership fees : For Paris residents - 1 month, 50 Francs ; 6 months, 75 Francs ; 12 months, 100 Francs ; Annual family membership, 6 books at a time, 300 Francs. Out-of-Paris residents - 6 months, 4 books at a time, 200 Francs ; 12 months, 6 books at a time, 350 Francs. Members pay postage.

WHAT

THE AMERICAN LIBRARY
IN PARIS HAS DONE FOR ME

A. L. A. LIBRARY

. . . . the choice of books, the courtesy of the librarians, their culture, is extremely appreciated by French people, who, like myself, try to keep up with English and American literature.

ANDRE MAUROIS

. . . . I have found everyone ready with the friendliest, most intelligent assistance . . . . it contains an astonishingly good list of reference books . . . . I had expected to have to go back to California for certain material, but the Library has been able to supply me. In history and travel it is particularly well supplied.

HILDEGARDE HAWTHORNE

. . . . what a marvelous tool, for us French writers, is the Library. Thanks to it I have been able to prepare my voyages, before I set sail . . . . notably did I document myself for my "New York". This is grateful testimony from a constant reader.

PAUL MORAND

. . . . for both reading and research, it has rarely failed me. I should hardly know how to get along without it. The democratic accessibility of literature and learning . . . . represents one of the happiest aspects of our American civilization.

LUDWIG LEWISOHN

. . . . an institution which functions so informally, so happily and so inexpensively . . . . yet stands for so much that is permanent, instructive . . . . for some years now it has conferred a boon upon thousands of scholars, students, and lovers of literature, among whom I gratefully number myself.
