From: Peggy Barber, Director
Public Information Office
American Library Association
50 East Huron Street
Chicago, Illinois 60611
312 944-6780

For release: June 28, 1979

Conrad Henry Rawski, Dean and Professor, School of Library Science, Case Western Reserve University, Cleveland, was presented the Beta Phi Mu Award for "distinguished service to education for librarianship" at the American Library Association's Inaugural Banquet on June 28 during the annual conference of ALA in Dallas. The award is donated by Beta Phi Mu Library Science Honorary Association and includes $500 and a citation of achievement.

Dean Rawski received his A.B. in Vienna, Austria; M.A. and Ph.D. in musicology from the University of Vienna; and Certificate in librarianship from the Austrian Institute for Historical Research. His postgraduate studies include Fellow, Cornell University; Doctor in Residence, Harvard University; and Master of Library Science, Western Reserve University.

Dr. Rawski's library career has included positions at Cleveland Public Library; Ithaca College, New York; Boston Public Library; Harvard University and the Austrian National Library.

His publications include numerous reviews, articles and books on librarianship, music and medieval studies including Toward a Theory of Librarianship, Papers in Honor of Jesse H. Shera, and Fundamental Issues of Librarianship.

-more-
add one--Beta Phi Mu Award

The citation presented to Dr. Conrad Rawski reads:

Conrad Henry Rawski brings together in his person and in his inspired teaching the two ideals of the specialist scholar and the versatile generalist. Musicologist, translator, latinist, medievalist librarian, information scientist, humanist, Petrarch scholar, professor and dean, he is at home in many worlds of learning. But he is, in the view of a generation of his students, most truly at home as a teacher and advisor of librarianship's novices and as mentor and friend to librarianship's fledging scholars. And it is through his students Conrad Rawski's high vision of what librarianship can be has radiated throughout his adopted country and the world.

Dean Rawski is a member of the American Society for Information Science, the Association of American Library Schools, Music Library Association, American Musicological Society, Mediaeval Academy of America; and has been a member of the American Library Association since 1957.

Dean Rawski received his A.B. in Vienna, Austria; A.L. and Ph.D. in musicology from the University of Vienna; and Certificate in Librarianship from the Austrian Institute for Historical Research. His postgraduate studies include Mellon, Cornell University, Doctor in Residence, Harvard University, and Master of Library Science, Western Reserve University.

Dr. Rawski's library career has included positions at Cleveland Public Library; Ethical College, New York; Boston Public Library, Harvard University and the Austrian National Library.

His publications include numerous reviews, articles and books on librarianship, music and medieval studies including 'Toward a Theory of Librarianship', 'Papers in Honor of Joseph M. Jeffs', and 'Fundamental Issues of Librarianship'.