Mary Jo Lynch, Director of the American Library Association's Office for Research, has been selected as one of 20 participants for the National Academy of Education's Research Management Workshop, to be held in Washington, D.C., July 29 to August 11. Funded by the National Institute of Education's Experimental Program for Opportunities in Advanced Studies and Research in Education, the Academy project will provide workshop participants with information and skills that will increase their ability to organize and direct educational research enterprises. The goals of the entire project are to assist in the career growth of the participants, to develop effective materials for the training of educators in educational research management, and more effectively to integrate women and minority researchers into the main stream of educational research.

The all expenses paid workshop will consist of seminars containing lectures, discussions, and simulations exercises concerning a variety of topics including: research conceptualization, proposal preparation, budget preparation, use of computers, and project closing and evaluation.
