Dear Zena,

I think your editorial on the Newbery/Caldecott program in the ALSC Newsletter hit the nail right on the head. I would love to see an elegant reception, where authors, editors, librarians, and other interested people could mingle freely and have the opportunity to meet each other. Banquet tickets have become prohibitively expensive for many librarians, who have to scrimp and save to attend an ALA annual conference. I don't think the festivity or the importance of the occasion would be diminished by having a reception rather than a banquet, and it seems to me that more of our members would appreciate the opportunity to meet and talk with each other on a less formal basis.

Sincerely,

Marilyn Kaye
