An essay award of $200 has been established by the American Library History Round Table (ALHRT) to encourage excellence in library history research. The winner's article will be published in a future issue of The Journal of Library History.

The essays submitted should not be previously published nor currently under consideration for publication. They should combine original historical research on a significant subject of library history and be based on source materials and manuscripts if possible. They should be organized in form similar to that of articles published in The Journal of Library History, with footnotes, spelling and punctuation conforming to the rules of Manual of Style (12th ed., Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1972). Papers should not exceed 25 typewritten pages in length.

All manuscripts should be sent by March 1, 1978 to:

Dr. Haynes McMullen, Chairperson
ALHRT Award Committee
c/o School of Library Science
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, NC 27514

The winner will be announced during the ALHRT program at ALA's 1978 annual conference next June.
