FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

May 1976

A new directory of consultants who specialize in library buildings is being compiled by the Library Administration Division (LAD) of the American Library Association.

The directory will be sent to librarians, trustees and others who request names of consultants. It will contain much more information than previously available, including time and geographical limitations of the consultant, type of library specialty, specific area of expertise, and previous building projects.

By providing information on the consultant's qualifications, experience, specialties and interests, the new directory will better answer the many requests for consultants' names received at ALA headquarters.

Librarians who serve as consultants should contact LAD for an application and further information.
