In order to get input from people concerned about young adults and intellectual freedom, the Young Adult Services Division's Intellectual Freedom Committee will hold an open meeting during ALA's Midwinter Meeting (Jan. 30 - Feb. 5) in Washington, D.C.

Scheduled for Monday, January 31, 8:30 - 10:30 p.m., the purpose of the meeting is to provide a forum for librarians to communicate concerns, experiences and suggestions on how the committee can be most helpful to those working with young adults.

Since YASD is concerned with service to young adults in all types of libraries, the committee hopes for input from librarians working in jails, institutions of any type, schools and public libraries.

If you cannot attend the Midwinter Meeting or have a conflict in your schedule, the committee welcomes written communications. Please send all comments, suggestions, etc. to:
