"You Too Can Be Sued" and "Emergency--the Art of Coping" are two Library Administration Division (LAD) programs scheduled for the ALA annual conference in Detroit, June 17-23. Both are sponsored by LAD's Library Organization and Management Section's Insurance for Libraries Committee.

"You Too Can Be Sued" (Saturday, June 18, 10 a.m. to 12 noon) will provide information on personal liabilities of library trustees and officers and possible means of insuring against these risks. Featured speakers will include attorney William Esseks, a Long Island library trustee and a well-known insurance representative. Ample time for questions will be provided.

"Emergency--the Art of Coping" (Saturday, June 18, 2-4 p.m.) will provide practical suggestions for the efficient handling of all types of library emergencies and disasters. Procedures for filing claims, for requesting special funds, for applying for federal aid, and related topics will be discussed. A panel of four professionals with experience in dealing with disasters will offer a variety of tidbits for discussion.
