May 2018

- Reference under the Radar
- Featured Reference Review
  - #TWITTERREFERENCE
  - Professional Reading Roundup

FROM THE EDITOR
It's hard being a librarian. Everyone thinks you already know everything, and yet, that same everyone is also surprised that "you need a master's degree to do that??" (Thanks, Mom.)

Not only do we need a master's degree but we also need continuing education to keep up with everything we're already supposed to know (or at least how to access that everything). And then our jobs keep shifting—one minute we're reading dictionary definitions over the phone, and the next we're teaching someone who doesn't know how to use a mouse how to create a résumé, and then we're digging through military service records, and then we're making the doggone desk schedule.

Like I said, it's hard being a librarian. There's a lot to keep up with! This month's Top Shelf Reference is designed to make that part, at least, a little easier. First, Mike Bemis gives us some wit and wisdom about the internet. Then there's a featured review of a must-read book that will make communicating with everyone at work a lot easier. A smattering of tweets about librarianship will help you feel less alone. And, finally, the much-delayed "Professional Reading Roundup," which will give you lots to read up on when you don't have time to actually leave the library for training.

Say, another great professional opportunity is right on the horizon: ALA Annual, in New Orleans. Who's going? Besides me? If the answer is you, stop by the Booklist booth and say hi! I may cajole you into sharing ideas for future Top Shelf newsletters. It is equally likely that I will cajole you into sharing resources for attractive comfort shoes. Hope to see you all there!

—Susan Maguire
Senior Editor, Collection Development and Library Outreach,
Booklist
smaguire@ala.org
@Booklist_Susan
Reference under the Radar
Mike Bemis

Who—besides myself—is sick to their stomachs at hearing for the one thousand and umpteenth time that "people like to find; only librarians like to search"?

Feel free to throw up now and avoid the rush. read more→

Featured Reference Review: Ask A Manager

Fine, so Ask A Manager is not technically a reference book. But Alison Green's blog was a great help to me when I was a new supervisor, suddenly responsible for the performance of 25 circ-staff employees. Ask A Manager gave me language to confront issues, methods to improve morale, and an occasional relieved laugh that at least my workplace wasn't as bad as all that. Her book does much of the same, and I suggest it to any librarian who has more management responsibilities than she feels prepared for. read more→
Today in #librarylife mysteries: found a pair of jeans and a shirt, inside-out and likely hastily-removed, on the front lawn.

11:11 AM - 11 May 2018

Patron shenanigans, bureaucratic hilarity, research triumphs . . . these are all part of the life of a librarian. Fortunately, there's Twitter, where library folks can commiserate and celebrate. read more→

Professional Reading Roundup
Susan Maguire

It's been a minute since the last "Professional Reading Roundup", so here are a selection of the materials we reviewed that would be good additions to your professional-reading collections. All of our professional-reading reviews are online exclusives; you can find them by logging in to booklistonline.com and doing an advanced search for "Reference Library Science." read more→

FOLLOW US ON TWITTER!

@ALA_Booklist
Booklist Publications

@BooklistReader
The Booklist Reader blog

@BooklistYA
Booklist Youth Department

@Booklist_Bill
Bill Ott, Editor & Publisher

@Booklist_Keir
Keir Graff, Executive Editor

@Booklist_Donna
Donna Seaman, Adult Books Editor

@Booklist_Susan
Susan Maguire, Senior Editor, Collection Management and Library Outreach

@Booklist_Annie
Annie Bostrom, Associate Editor, Adult Books

@Booklist_Joyce
Joyce Saricks, Audio Editor

@Booklist_Ilene
Ilene Cooper, Contributing Editor

@Booklist_Briana
Briana Shemroske, Marketing Associate

Manage your subscriptions to Booklist e-mails here.
If you no longer wish to receive Booklist e-mails, please click here.
To subscribe to Booklist magazine, click here.
To unsubscribe from all American Library Association communications, click here.

American Library Association, 50 East Huron Street, Chicago, IL 60611