Introduction

This document describes best practices for encoding the date(s) of creation of works and expressions in bibliographic descriptions. In the MARC bibliographic record environment, this is accomplished through the deployment of fields 046 (Special Coded Dates) and 388 (Time Period of Creation). The following categories commonly encountered are described separately below:

- Date(s) of creation of individual works
- Date(s) of creation of the aggregated works in a compilation
- Date(s) of creation of aggregating works (compilations, anthologies, etc.)
- Date(s) of creation of expressions

These best practices follow the definitions for “work” and “expression” as laid out in the IFLA Library Reference Model (IFLA-LRM). For resources which are aggregates, these best practices are chiefly concerned with the “collection aggregate” subtype described in IFLA-LRM. Single-work situations described in this document may qualify as “parallel” or “augmentation” aggregates as described in IFLA-LRM; in these situations, it is the primary/predominant work which is described in the 046 and/or 388 fields. This focus aligns with other fields in the MARC bibliographic record, which similarly describe the primary/predominant work/expression embodied in such resources.
These guidelines do not directly address the use of 046 and 388 in MARC authority records for works and expressions, though they may be adapted for that purpose in the future. For official guidelines on the use of the 046 and 388 fields in NACO authority records, consult the Library of Congress Descriptive Cataloging Manual Z1: Name and Series Authority Records (DCM Z1).

The intended scope of these guidelines is current cataloging, though these guidelines may be used as the basis for retrospective efforts to enhance legacy bibliographic and authority metadata with faceted chronological data. Examples include both RDA and AACR2 bibliographic records. Dates and other chronological data found elsewhere in legacy bibliographic records can be “mined” in order to derive faceted data encoded in 046 and 388 fields. The SAC Subcommittee on Faceted Vocabularies plans to address these possibilities through separate documentation in the future.

These guidelines do not address the chronological aspect of the subject of works (encoded either as chronological subdivisions in 6XX subfield $y$ or as headings in fields 648 or 650). For guidance on describing the time period of topical coverage of a work, consult the Library of Congress Subject Headings Manual (SHM), specifically instruction sheet H 620, “Chronological Headings and Subdivisions.”

Note that the SHM also describes cases where LCSH base headings and/or chronological subdivisions are used to refer to time period of creation of works (predominantly in the areas of music and literature). These best practice guidelines do not supersede those LCSH practices, and libraries that use LCSH should continue to assign such headings as applicable. Though 046 and 388 fields may appear duplicative in such cases, they are a means of encoding data in a manner that is more precise and amenable to faceting than their corresponding LCSH headings/subdivisions. See Appendix A for examples of resources where LCSH headings and faceted terms can both be deployed to describe the same chronological aspect.

The presence of faceted chronological data in bibliographic metadata facilitates numerous potential uses in discovery environments, and this document does not presume any particular set of specifications for indexing, display, and searching/faceting behavior. Indeed, the justification for the development of enhanced functionality around faceted data in general requires a critical mass of faceted data to be present in the bibliographic records within a given discovery environment. It is hoped that these best practice guidelines will hasten that critical mass, through the encouragement of incorporation of the faceted approach to chronological data in both current cataloging and retrospective efforts.

1 The display and indexing of faceted data is an area of ongoing research and development, and SSFV recognizes the interrelationship between best practices for encoding faceted data and how that data is best deployed in discovery environments. SSFV intends to monitor ongoing developments in that space. See Appendix B for a bibliography of relevant sources.

2 SSFV does not assert a specific overall target percentage of bibliographic records that require the presence of faceted data in order to meet the threshold for such a “critical mass.” For certain creative disciplines (e.g., music, bellettristic literature, moving images), 100% coverage is the eventual goal, whereas for other disciplines, optimal user outcomes can be achieved with a lower percentage. Further exploration of this topic is beyond the scope of the present document.
MARC specifications

046 Field

The MARC 046 field is used to encode specific and approximate dates associated with works, expressions, and manifestations. (This document describes work and expression dates only.) In most cases, 4-digit years are given. Where more precise dates are available (e.g., months, seasons, days), they may be recorded.

- Subfields $k$ and $l are used to encode dates of creation of a single work, including an aggregation. Subfield $k$ is used for a single date of creation and for the beginning date of a date range. Subfield $l$ is used for the ending date of a date range.

  Examples:

  046 ## $k 2019 $2 edtf

  An individual work or an aggregation created in 2019

  046 ## $k 1845 $l 1846 $2 edtf

  An individual work or an aggregation created from 1845 to 1846

- Subfields $o$ and $p are used to encode the date(s) of creation of the works in a collection/aggregation (e.g., works in a literary or musical compilation). Subfield $o$ is used for a single date of creation and for the beginning date of a date range. Subfield $p$ is used for the ending date of a date range.

  In some cases, both $k/l$ and $o/p$ can be used, for instance when an anthology of plays from the 18th century is compiled and published in the 20th century. Distinct coding of the creation dates of aggregating works and the individual works in them enables the difference between them to be easily identified.

  Example:

  046 ## $o 1660 $p 1810 $2 edtf

  Dates of creation of the works in the compilation

  046 ## $k 2002 $2 edtf

  Date of creation of the compilation itself

  245 00 $a Amazing grace : $b an anthology of poems about slavery, 1660-1810 / $c edited by James G. Basker.

  264 #1 $a New Haven : $b Yale University Press, $c [2002]

  Note: The above dates could also be recorded in a single 046 field, since all of them are encoded according to the same date scheme, in this case EDTF: 046 ## $k 2002 $o 1660 $p 1810 $2 edtf

- Subfield $2$ is used to designate the date scheme according to which the dates are encoded. Encode specific and approximate dates using the Extended Date and Time Format, except for centuries.
Examples:

046 ## $k 1964 $2 edtf
An individual work or an aggregation created in 1964

046 ## $o 1780 $p 1913 $2 edtf
A compilation containing works created between 1780 and 1913

but

046 ## $k 17
An individual work or an aggregation created in the 18th century; ISO 8601 coding used for 18th century; no $2 is given for ISO 8601 century dates

046 ## $o 19
A compilation containing works created in the 20th century; ISO 8601 coding used for 20th century; no $2 is given for ISO 8601 century dates

388 Field

The 388 field is used to record controlled or uncontrolled vocabulary in textual form for the time period of creation of a work or expression (including aggregations) and/or for the time period of creation of the works or expressions contained in an aggregation. When specific date(s) of creation of the work(s) embodied in a resource are not known or span a long period of time, it may be particularly useful to supply textual chronological terms in this field.

- The first indicator is set to 1 when the term refers to the creation of the work/expression or to the components of an aggregate work/expression considered collectively. It is set to 2 when the term refers to the creation of the aggregate work itself.
- The second indicator is undefined.
- Subfield $a is used for the controlled or uncontrolled term. When recording a heading with subdivisions, replace the subfield coding for the subdivision(s) with two hyphens and close up the spaces between the main heading and subdivision(s). Example: Depressions--1929
- Subfield $2 is used to record a code for the source of the controlled term in $a. Consult the Library of Congress's Temporal Term Source Codes (https://www.loc.gov/standards/sourcelist/temporal.html) and Subject Heading and Term Source Codes (https://www.loc.gov/standards/sourcelist/subject.html) lists for established vocabularies and their source codes. If an uncontrolled term is used, do not include subfield $2 or use code local for a locally maintained vocabulary.
- Subfield $3 may be used to identify the part of the described materials to which the field applies.
- Subfield $0 may be used to record an identifier (including a URI) for the authority record for the term recorded in $a. Subfield $1 may be used to record a real world object URI for the chronological entity. For best practices and guidance on obtaining, formulating, and including URIs in these subfields consult the PCC Task Group on Linked Data Best Practices: Final Report and related documents available on the URIs in MARC Pilot Resource Documents & Tools website. These subfields are optional, but potentially useful for the transition of MARC records to linked data.

045 Field

In older MARC bibliographic records, the 045 field was used to encode specific dates and/or time periods associated with the resource. The nature of the chronological content in 045 varies with the resource type:

- For books and continuing resources, this field indicates the period depicted by the content of the item.
- For collections of mixed materials, this field indicates the time period covered by the collection.
- For computer files, this field indicates the period covered by the data in the file.
- For cartographic material, this field indicates the date portrayed on the item, that is, the situation date. A currently prepared map of Rome in 50 B.C. would be coded for the B.C. date. A remote-sensing map which depicts the time the satellite recorded the image would be coded for that time.
- For printed music and sound recordings, this field indicates the period of the composition, and will usually relate to the date of the composition. If the precise date of composition cannot be determined, an approximate date (or range of dates) or the dates of the composer are used.
- For motion pictures and videorecordings, this field indicates the time period depicted in the film.
- For two-dimensional nonprojectable graphic representations, this field indicates the time period depicted in the graphic.
- For artifacts, this field indicates the time period covered by the content of the artifact.
- For naturally occurring objects, this field indicates the time period of the content, that is, the time period that the item originated.

In many cases, specific dates and time periods coded in 045 can be repurposed in 046, when these dates describe a work or expression. This is generally the case for mixed materials, printed music, sound recordings, artifacts and naturally occurring objects, but is not the case for resources in other formats. When upgrading existing MARC bibliographic records, exercise caution when inputting 046 fields based on content in 045 fields. In current cataloging, do not use the 045 for mixed materials, printed music, sound recordings, artifacts or naturally occurring objects; prefer the 046 field for this purpose.
Date of creation of single work

Date(s) of creation of a single work are encoded in field 046 $k$ and $l$. Take information on a date of work from any source. It is not necessary to justify the date(s) recorded in the 046 field in a 5XX note field; doing so is a matter of cataloger judgment.

Creation date is same as date of publication

If the date of creation is known to be the same as the date of publication, record it in field 046.

Approximate and probable dates of creation

If a precise creation date in a non-Gregorian calendar is known, but it corresponds to two possible dates in the Gregorian calendar, record the Gregorian dates in the 046 field.

Best Practices for Recording Faceted Chronological Data in Bibliographic Records, Version 1.0

If the precise date of creation is not known and the date of the earliest known manifestation embodying the work is unknown or imprecise, record an approximate date of creation (e.g., a probable date, a decade, a century date, a probable range of dates) if one can be inferred.

264 _1 $a Navadehalī : $b Rāṣṭriya-Saṃskṛta-Saṃstham, $c 2012.

A Sanskrit play first published in 2012; based on author's dates, work almost certainly was created in the 20th century.

Use of 388 when precise date not available

If a specific date of creation of a single work is not available, a textual chronological term for a time period during which the work was created may be recorded in field 388. If the term does not come from a controlled vocabulary, record it without subfield $2. Take information on the time period of creation from any source, including the title, series statement, information found elsewhere in the resource being cataloged, or sources outside of the resource itself. It is not necessary to justify the time period of creation recorded in the 388 field in a 5XX note field; doing so is a matter of cataloger judgment.
Examples:

130 0# $a Beowulf. $l English (Old English) $s (Jack)
388 1# $a Anglo-Saxon period
546 ## $a Old English text; English introduction and notes.

Uncontrolled term for time period of creation of the work.

130 0# $a Weakest goeth to the wall.
388 1# $a Elizabethan era
388 1# $a Renaissance $2 lcsh
490 1# $a Renaissance drama

Uncontrolled term for the more precise period of creation identified in the title and a controlled term from LCSH for the less precise period identified in the series statement.

Field 388 may also be used in conjunction with a date in the 046 field. This may be particularly useful when a particular time period of creation is mentioned prominently in a resource.

Date(s) of aggregated works in a compilation

Specific dates vs. less precise dates (including centuries) in 046

Record the creation date(s) of works in a compilation in subfields $o$ and $p$. Use precise dates when explicitly provided by the resource, or when the information is otherwise readily available. It is not necessary to justify the date(s) recorded in the 046 field in a 5XX note field; doing so is a matter of cataloger judgment.

The title indicates that this anthology focuses on the 20th century, but the contents show that the dates of the aggregated works range from 1897-2002. Only the first 046 is strictly necessary, but given the focus of this work, some catalogers may wish to add a second 046 for the 20th century to compensate for systems that can only search and facet on dates that are explicitly recorded.

Range of dates in a single 046 vs. separate 046 fields

If there are not many works in the aggregation and their dates are known, it is preferable to give each date individually in subfield $o$.\(^3\) When giving dates in separate 046 fields, the order of the fields does not matter. Give dates of individual works in an aggregation in $o$ rather than $k$ so that they can be clearly distinguished and faceted separately from any dates of the aggregating work that may appear in $k$.

Example:

\(^3\) As of this writing, subfield $3$ is not yet implemented in field 046, so it is not possible to specify to which work(s) a date refers. Subfield $8$ is available to link related fields, but has not been widely implemented. See the MARC 21 Format for Bibliographic Data (https://www.loc.gov/marc/bibliographic/ecbdcntf.html) for further information and examples on how to use $8$.
Specific dates may be given for some or all all works in an aggregate when these are known and deemed to be useful.

Use of 388 when precise dates not available

Inferring dates or approximate dates from other information in the record

Date ranges can sometimes be inferred from subject headings and input in 046. Though 046 fields may appear duplicative in such cases, they are a means of encoding data in a manner that is more amenable to faceting and indexing than their corresponding LCSH headings/subdivisions.

Examples:

046 ## $o 19
245 04 $a The art of the tale : $b an international anthology of short stories / $c edited by Daniel Halpern.
520 ## $a The years since World War II have seen an exciting resurgence of the short story. From Albert Camus to William Maxwell, from Amos Oz to R.K. Narayan, from Ann Beattie to Yukio Mishima ...
650 #0 $a Fiction $y 20th century.

An alternative way to code this might be 046 ## $o [1946..] $p [..1987] $2 edtf, meaning “1946 or after through 1987 or before.” The choice might depend on how a particular discovery system utilizes the more precise coding. More precise coding such as this might best be predicated on having the resource in hand.

046 ## $o 20
245 00 $a Fever dreams : $b new work from Padua / $c [editorial director, Dan Tucker ; introduction, Guy Zimmerman].
520 ## $a “... offers ten superb plays including work from the last nine seasons...”
650 #0 $a American drama $y 21st century.

Inference of dates of aggregated works from subject headings should be used with caution. The date ranges represented in subject headings are sometimes incomplete or misleading, especially for anthologies or compilations published around the turn of a century. For example, both of the anthologies below contain “The Hermit's Story” by Rick Bass, which originally appeared in the Paris Review in 1998. The second subject heading and the coding of 20 for twenty-first century in the 046 field in the first example therefore is not entirely reflective of the contents of the compilation.
Best Practices for Recording Faceted Chronological Data in Bibliographic Records, Version 1.0

Examples:

046 ## $o 20
245 04 $a The Ecco anthology of contemporary American short fiction / $c selected by Joyce Carol Oates and Christopher R. Beha.
264 #1 $a New York : $b Harper Perennial, $c [2008]
650 #0 $a Short stories, American.
650 #0 $a American fiction $y 21st century.

Century date supplied algorithmically by a computer based on the century date in the second subject heading. Since this anthology only contains works from the first decade of the 21st century, a more precise coding might be 046 ## $o 2000~ $p 2008~ $2 edtf, meaning “approximately 2000 to approximately 2008.” Of course, with the resource in hand, a cataloger may be able to determine the precise creation dates of the works in the collection.

046 ## $o 1998 $p 1999 $2 edtf
650 #0 $a Short stories, American.
650 #0 $a Short stories, Canadian.
650 #0 $a American fiction $y 20th century.
650 #0 $a Canadian fiction $y 20th century.

Particular caution should also be used when inferring dates from LCSH subject headings for scores and recordings of jazz and popular music. Section H 1916.5 of the Library of Congress Subject Headings Manual tells catalogers to prefer chronological subdivisions based on when the music was popular or recorded rather than on the date of creation or composition:

A. Notated music: select chronological subdivisions on the basis of when the music was popular, or if that is not known, by date of composition or publication, in that order of preference.

B. Performed music (sound recordings, moving image materials, etc.): select chronological subdivisions on the basis of when the music was popular, or if that is not known, by the date of recording, etc.

It is often possible to supply a century for an aggregate where all the aggregated works have been created by a single author, particularly if the author was born and died in the same century or was born in the same century in which the aggregate was first published.

Examples:

046 ## $o 16

For most formats, MARC 045 describes the time period depicted or discussed by the content. However, for scores and sound recordings, the MARC format states that 045 “indicates the period of the composition, and will usually relate to the date of the composition. If the precise date of composition cannot be determined, an approximate date (or range of dates) or the dates of the composer are used.” 045 is also used to indicate the date(s) of creation for mixed materials and naturally occurring objects.

Collection of treatises reprinted in 1969-1971, reproduced from the original compilation published between 1745 and 1755. The individual works compiled were created between 1725 and 1746.
In some cases, pairing the 046 field with a 388 for time period of creation may be helpful. For example, if a resource emphasizes a named historical period, and it is also possible to express the time period with precise dates, then inputting an 046 field with the latter and a 388 field with the former, is advisable.

Date of expression

Currently, in the MARC bibliographic format, there is no way to distinguish (in a machine-actionable way) work dates from expression dates in the 046 field. Subfields $k$ and $l$ are defined as dates or date ranges “on which a resource has been created.” The word “resource” is nonspecific in connotation with respect to the IFLA-LRM entities Work and Expression. Since SSFV recommends the use of 046 $k$ and $l$ for describing works in these guidelines, SSFV recommends that these subfields not also be used to describe expressions in MARC bibliographic records.

Example:

046 ## $k 1874 $2 edtf
046 ## $k 1922 $2 edtf
100 1# $a Mussorgsky, Modest Petrovich, $d 1839-1881, $e composer.
240 10 $a Kartinki s vystavki; $o arranged $s (Ravel)
245 10 $a Pictures at an exhibition / $c Moussorgsky-Ravel.
500 ## $a Arranged by Maurice Ravel in 1922.

The definition of MARC 046 subfield $k$ in the authority format is slightly different, and reads as follows: “For a work, earliest date (normally the year) associated with a work; that date may be the date the work was created or first published or released. For an expression, the earliest date (normally the year) associated with an expression; that date may be the date of the earliest known manifestation of that expression. In both cases the date in subfield $k$ may be the starting date of a range or a single date.” Since authority records are narrower in scope, and can be construed as describing a single IFLA-LRM entity, the 046 subfields $k$ and $l$ can be used for both work and expression dates, with the assumption that the types of dates would not be commingled in a single MARC authority record. Authority records are currently out of scope of these best practices, though SSFV anticipates that parallel guidelines for the use of 046 fields in authority records will be developed, in collaboration with the Library of Congress and the Program for Cooperative Cataloging.

SSFV advanced a MARC proposal suggesting indicator values in bibliographic field 046 to distinguish between work and expression dates, along with new subfields for materials specified ($3$) and explanatory notes ($x$ and $z$). This proposal was approved by the MARC Advisory Committee in January 2021. However, until such time as these MARC bibliographic format changes are fully implemented, SSFV recommends that dates of expression be given elsewhere in bibliographic records, as they are now. For example, 5XX notes or 033 fields (described below) may be used.
Date of capture/broadcast

For audio and video resources, date of capture and date of broadcast are subtypes of date of expression. Follow established MARC coding procedures for date and place of capture information, using fields 033 and/or 518. Do not encode a date of capture/broadcast as such in an 046 field. (A date of capture/broadcast may correspond with the date of creation of the work embodied in a resource, and that date may be encoded in 046.)

Examples:

518 ## $a Originally broadcast live on CBS on October 18, 1953, on the television program Omnibus.

Work created in 1953 and broadcast live that year.
In some cases, an expression is associated with both a date of capture/broadcast and another, earlier date. In current practice, it is recommended not to give the earlier expression date in 046; for now, a 500 field may be used.
