

For Immediate Release
January 1993

From: Pamela Goodes
Linda Wallace
312-280-5043, 5042

Advanced collection management and development institutes planned

"Advanced Collection Management and Development" is the title of an institute, March 26-28, at the Stouffer Riviera Hotel in Chicago sponsored by the Association for Library Collections & Technical Services (ALCTS), a division of the American Library Association (ALA). The deadline for registration, limited to 70 persons, is March 8.

The program is designed for advanced collection development specialists in all types of libraries. It will provide concentrated information on collections management with detailed information in the area of electronic information.

Speakers will include: Ross Atkinson, Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.; Nancy Cline, Pennsylvania State University, University Park; Gay Dannelly, Ohio State University, Columbus; Nancy Eaton, Iowa State University, Ames; David Farrell, University of California, Berkeley; Tony Ferguson, Columbia University, New York, N.Y.; Laura Gasaway, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; Peggy Johnson, University of Minnesota, St. Paul; Bonnie MacEwan, Pennsylvania State University; Jim Neal, Indiana University, Bloomington; Eugene Wiemers, Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., and Kathleen Zar, University of Chicago.

Registration fees, which includes instructional materials, two lunches, coffee breaks and one breakfast, are $360 for ALCTS members, $395 for ALA members and $430 for nonmembers.

For more information, contact Yvonne McLean at the ALCTS Office, 800-545-2433, ext. 5032.