ALSC Bound to Stay Bound Scholarships winners named

Melissa Zymboly Depper, an employee of the Tattered Covered Bookstore in Denver, Colo., and Janice Marilyn Wall, supervisor of the Potlatch Branch of Moscow (Idaho)-Latah County Library, are the 1993 recipients of the Association for Library Service to Children (ALSC) Bound to Stay Bound Scholarships.

The scholarships, $5,000 each donated by Bound to Stay Bound Books, Inc., are given for study in the field of library service to children toward the master's degree in library science or beyond in an American Library Association (ALA)-accredited program.

"I've discovered that I am at my happiest when talking with kids about books," said Dapper.

Her interest in public education, literacy advocacy and issues of freedom of the press and censorship also draw her to librarianship.

Wall believes that "people are paramount in the information profession." She has worked in public library services since 1975 and sees obtaining a master's degree as a means of keeping up with change and managing increasingly sophisticated information services for young people.
