Reshma Saujani, Girls Who Code Founder and CEO, to Open Annual Conference

Since 2012, Girls Who Code has taught computing skills to and inspired more than 10,000 girls across America – and they are just at the beginning of their mission to close the gender gap in tech. Reshma Saujani, the founder and CEO of the national nonprofit organization, is also the author of the groundbreaking book Women Who Don’t Wait In Line, in which she advocates for a new model of female leadership focused on embracing risk and failure, promoting mentorship and sponsorship, and boldly charting your own course. She will speak at the opening general session of the Annual Conference today from 4:00 – 5:15 p.m.

Girls Who Code is growing fast, with a goal of reaching one million young women by 2020; 1.4 million jobs will be open in computing-related fields in the U.S., of which we are only on pace to fill 29 percent with computing graduates, a mere 3 percent of whom are likely to be women. The organization has been featured in more than 100 publications and media outlets, from The New York Times to “The Today Show,” and has more than 105,000 Twitter followers. The forthcoming book Girls Who Code: Learn to Code and Change the World (August 2017, ages 10 and up), will show girls how coding skills

Connecting Schools with Public Libraries

Good Things Happen When Libraries and Schools Work Together

- Students access the rich breadth of e-content at the library right from their desks
- Public libraries gain patrons and build increasing use and circulation of the digital content they own
- Communities benefit when their tax dollars provide digital resources that can be used by everyone

LET’S WORK TOGETHER For more information on how to start a Community Sharing initiative at your library, contact a Baker & Taylor representative at communityshare@baker-taylor.com.

3:00 – 3:45 p.m.
Keith Baumann
(Jazz/swing, Banjo/guitar)

Saujani are relevant to their lives and will get them excited about creating their own apps, games, and robots. With dynamic artwork, down-to-earth explanations of coding principles, and real-life stories of girls and women working at places like Pixar and NASA, it sets out to prove that coding is truly for everyone, no matter their interests.

“The world is advancing in technology and women and girls need to educate themselves on computer science to catch up. I don’t know much about, or reading a book on a topic they don’t know much about, or reading a book about a character they don’t find relatable. This might mean reading a book about a character who doesn’t look like them or live like them, reading a book about a topic they don’t know much about, or reading a book in a format they don’t usually choose.

Yang said he was thrilled to serve as Honorary Chair of the 2016 National Library Week. "Libraries were such an important part of my childhood, and they're an important part of my life today. I visit my local library to research, to read, to write, and to be inspired. I'm deeply grateful for our nation's libraries and librarians."

A book signing will take place outside the ballroom immediately following the event. Yang’s appearance at the conference is sponsored by Macmillan Children’s Publishing Group booth #2711 and Dark Horse Comics booth # 3927.

Book Club Central to Launch Saturday

Join us for the launch of ALA’s Book Club Central where honorary chair Sarah Jessica Parker will reveal her first book pick! The announcement will be made during the ALA President’s Program Saturday, 3:30 – 4:30 p.m. McCormick Place, W375b/Skyline.

You’ll also get a peek at the new Book Club Central website and meet the author of the recommended book.

The selected author will have a book signing after the program.

For all the latest news, be sure to follow Book Club Central on Facebook, Instagram and Twitter.

Yang has delivered a TEDx Talk on the subject. His session will take place on Saturday from 8:30 – 9:30 a.m.

As National Ambassador for Young People’s Literature, Yang is focusing on his program “Reading Without Walls,” showing kids and teens—and adults invested in young people’s literacy—that reading is a vital part of their lives, and the importance of “reading without walls.” This might mean reading a book about a character who doesn’t look like them or live like them, reading a book about a topic they don’t know much about, or reading a book in a format they don’t usually choose.

AL A Executive Director Opportunity

Libraries are an iconic feature of American civic life. For many, libraries have introduced them to the joy of learning and the magic of books; for others, libraries have offered a safe and productive haven for study, research, and reflection; for others, they provide access to the internet, and to a vast array of educational programs and community resources. Not only have America’s libraries transformed the lives of their users, they themselves have transformed as societal needs and technology have dramatically reshaped the role and nature of libraries. Libraries have been on the leading edge of the digital age and continue to meet the evolving needs of their communities.

The current executive director, Keith Michael Fielk has served ALA for 15 years. His tenure has been marked by important developments in the field and the association. He will be retiring on July 31, 2017.

The American Library Association seeks a dynamic, innovative, enterprising, and experienced leader in the library and information science education. It advocates for issues and values that are important to the field and the association’s strong reputation, and valuable institutions in American society. The next executive director will be able to leverage the organization’s strong reputation and the passion and dedication of the association’s members, staff, and elected leaders to build even stronger support for libraries, those who work in them, and the millions of users who benefit from them.

ALA has engaged Isaacson, Miller, a national executive search firm, to assist with this important search. On Saturday and Sunday, consultants from Isaacson, Miller will be at our Annual Conference and available to meet, in confidence, with interested parties, to discuss this opportunity. To contact them, please email Marc St. Hilaire (msthilaire@IMSearch.com) or Nanette M. Blandin (NBlandin@IMSearch.com). For additional information about this opportunity, please visit http://www.imsearch.com/searches/details/content/S6-242.

Dear Librarians and Colleagues,

I won’t be able to make it to this year’s ALA in Chicago. Instead, I’ll see you all at the Midwinter Meeting in Denver.

I wrote Jack and the Geniuses along with my surfing buddy Greg Mone, because we want young readers to have the same experience of adventure, learning, and joy that he and I had reading novels as we were coming of age. Now more than ever, we need curious minds to tackle the tough challenges ahead as our populations burgeon and our energy demands grow. We can do it, though, with enough kids growing up to know and appreciate the process of science and how they can be part of a bright future.

Watch for Greg on the Exhibit Hall floor. You can talk surfing, bow ties, and pizzabots. See you in Denver. Let’s change the world.

Castro’s national literacy campaign and travels into the impoverished countryside to teach others how to read.

Paterson first learned about the Cuban literacy campaign when planning her second trip to Cuba. Her friend, Mary Leahy (sister of Senator Patrick Leahy), director of Central Vermont Adult Basic Education, shared that in one year the campaign turned Cuba into an illiteracy-free country. This is truly a tale of transformation as a whole, in that it is inspired by a true event that completely changed the state of literacy of an entire country.

Libraries Ready to Code Expands with New Grant from Google

Libraries Ready to Code, a hot topic at conferences since the initiative started in April 2016, continues to expand its mission with $500,000 in new funding from Google, Inc. The competitive grant program is Phase III of Libraries Ready to Code, an ongoing collaboration between ALA and Google, which aims to prepare library professionals to develop and deliver youth programming that promotes computer science (CS) and critical thinking.

“It's clearer than ever that young people need coding skills, and libraries are the perfect place to teach those skills,” said ALA President Julie Todaro.

The new grant will provide a cohort of 25 to 50 school and public libraries funding for devices, staffing, marketing and other costs associated with piloting a CS educational toolkit developed by libraries, for libraries.

Along with the funding comes consulting expertise and operational support from Google, which hopes to facilitate a community of practice and build expertise across thousands of school and public U.S. libraries.

“Libraries are the cornerstones of our communities,” said Nicky Rigg of Google’s CS Education team. “We’re proud to partner with ALA to bring the best of what we have to offer to communities across the country.”

A key goal of Libraries Ready to Code is closing digital opportunity gaps. Because libraries already play a central role in access to technology among students underrepresented in CS fields – women, African Americans, Hispanics, and youth from rural or lower-income communities – they serve the families and youth who can most benefit from the resources the ALA-Google collaboration will create.

Libraries Ready to Code is about more than preparing young people for careers in CS. The critical thinking and systematic problem-solving skills youth cultivate in coding activities are transferable to many fields. “Computational thinking” skills help youth analyze and break down complex problems into solvable units to transform data into understanding.

“All kids benefit from coding activities – not only those planning to work in technology-specific fields,” said Marijke Visser, associate director of ALA’s Office for Information Technology Policy (OITP) and Libraries Ready to Code project manager.

The Young Adult Library Services Association (YALSA) will administer the grant program on behalf of ALA. The request for proposals will be released in mid-July and applications accepted through August 2017. The selection committee will comprise representatives from the American Association of School Librarians (AASL), Association for Library Service to Children (ALSC), OITP, and YALSA. Final cohort libraries will be announced in October. For more information, contact Visser at mvisser@alawash.org, or press@Google.com.

Set in 2001, in Kabul, Afghanistan, The Breadwinner is the story of Parvana, a young girl who must cut off her hair and disguise herself as a boy to become the breadwinner for her family when her father is unfairly imprisoned. It’s a timely and inspiring tale of girl empowerment and the power of imagination in the face of adversity. This bestselling middle-grade novel by Deborah Ellis is now an animated feature film to be released in Fall 2017.

In consultation with educators, the filmmakers are thrilled to expand what is already a traditional literary unity in many schools in the hopes of capturing the imagination of students and harnessing their inspiration to effect positive change in our world. The program includes:

- The Breadwinner as a novel study;
- An interactive online study guide with lessons relevant to the novel, social studies and art studies;
- A field trip/screening to see the animated feature film locally; and
- An optional student-led action campaign to support education for boys and girls in less developed countries and at home.

“I am very proud to be part of this beautiful film with this timely and very important subject matter. Millions of girls around the world have to grow up before their time and work to provide for their families. I hope this film is able to bring this discussion to a broader audience.”

- Angelina Jolie, Executive Producer

Resume Review – Saturday and Sunday, 9:00 a.m. – 5:00 p.m.

Career Development Workshops (CDW) – Saturday

8:30 a.m. Orientation

9:00 – 10:00 a.m. “Getting Unstuck: Moving Ahead in Your Career When It Feels Like You Are Moving Behind”

were you looking for security and stability in your library career, but now you are experiencing stagnation? Have you had periods of success and achievement as a library innovator, but currently are being passed over for raises, promotions, and the cool projects? Learn how to anticipate and move past career plateaus. Topics include self-limiting belief systems, use of out-of-date data, and the importance of keeping your network of work-related contacts and your skills fresh.

10:30 – 11:30 a.m. “Renew, Re-Energize, Refresh Your Career”

Here are the top three reasons many people say they’re in their current jobs: “I needed more money.” Sound familiar? “It wasn’t what I wanted, but it was a foot in the door.” “I needed more money.” Sound familiar? Well, as they say, this isn’t a dress rehearsal, so it’s time you made the right career decisions – for the right reasons. Imagine being happy to go to work in the morning, seeing a bright future ahead of you, and taking pride in the contribution you’re making. It can happen! Maybe you just need to… Renew Yourself!

1:00 – 2:00 p.m. “Manage Your Stress and Start Living a Healthier Life Today”

Join us for this interactive session where we will discuss signs of stress and how it impacts your body and mental health. Walk away with stress reduction techniques that you will be able to use immediately. Leave feeling refreshed and prepared to meet challenges in healthier, more productive ways.

2:30 – 3:30 p.m. “Tips, Tricks, and Strategies for a Successful Job Hunt”

Whether you are looking for that first librarian position, looking to move up the career ladder, anticipating a geographic move, or looking for something else entirely, this interactive workshop will provide you with strategies and tools to navigate and organize your search, analyze job listings, and write effective, compelling cover letters and resumes. We will also discuss the importance of creating, and maintaining, a professional online presence, and of networking and getting involved in professional development opportunities – all of which will help get you noticed, in a good way, and propel you one step closer to the interview.

Learn More about ACRL’s Framework for Information Literacy for Higher Education

Interested in learning more about using ACRL’s Framework for Information Literacy for Higher Education at your institution? First, join the ACRL Student Learning and Information Literacy Committee on Saturday for “Teaching with the Framework from the Ground Up.” In this discussion, participants will be challenged to evaluate what students need to learn to be successful, how to demonstrate and communicate with faculty of the benefits of the Framework, and to explore “visions of the possible” in how to effectively promote Framework success stories, demonstrating applications and a variety of pedagogical methods.

The session will be held from 10:30 – 11:30 a.m. in the Hilton Chicago Buckingham Room.

Then spend Saturday afternoon with ACRL’s Community and Junior College Libraries, Distance Learning, and Instruction Sections for the session, “To Teach or Not to Teach Discovery Tools: Balancing Practical Instruction with the ACRL Information Literacy Framework.” As academic libraries began using discovery tools, a debate arose regarding when, where, and how to teach students to use discovery tools and incorporate the Framework. Depending on the type of institution, mode of instruction, and learning outcomes, librarians face challenges when teaching a discovery tool. This panel discussion will explore these challenges and discuss potential best practices. The session takes place from 1:00 – 2:30 p.m. in McCormick Place room W179a.

Sponsored by ProQuest, the Intellectual Freedom Award is given for upholding the principles of intellectual freedom as set forth by the American Association of School Librarians and the American Library Association. The award includes $1,000 to the recipient and $1,000 to the school library program of the recipient’s choice.

Roald Dahl’s Miss Honey Social Justice Award
Awarded to: Anne Mlod, school librarian, and Cinda Gilmore, fourth-grade teacher, Genesee Elementary School, Auburn, N.Y.
Sponsored by Penguin Random House, the award recognizes and encourages collaboration and partnerships between school librarians and teachers in teaching social justice through joint planning of a program, unit, or event in support of social justice using school library resources. The award includes $2,000 to the librarian, up to $1,000 in reimbursement towards travel and housing to attend the AASL awards presentation at the ALA Annual Conference, and a $5,000 book donation by Penguin Random House.

The Ruth Toor Grant for Strong Public School Libraries
Awarded to: Dana Kepler, school librarian, Park Hill High School, Kansas City, Mo.
Sponsored by Jay Toor, the award provides funding support on a competitive basis to public school libraries for the creation and implementation of a local public awareness/marketing campaign that promotes and positions their school library as a necessary resource in the community. The grant includes $3,000 to create and implement a project, and $2,000 for both the school librarian and school official to attend the AASL national conference or the ALA Annual Conference.

Satia Marshall Orange Recipient of 2017 EMIERT Distinguished Librarian Award

Satia Marshall Orange, former director of the Office for Literacy and Outreach Services (OLOS), is the recipient of the 2017 American Library Association Ethnic and Multicultural Information Exchange Round Table (EMIERT) Distinguished Librarian Award. The Distinguished Librarian Award recognizes significant accomplishments in library services that are national or international in scope and include improving, spreading, and promoting multicultural librarianship.

Under Orange’s passionate leadership and advocacy, OLOS broadened the association’s support and celebration of traditionally underserved library staff and library communities, developed new ALA member units and increased participation in events and activities, including the initiation of the annual Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Sunrise Celebration. Orange was the driving force behind the inception of the Sunrise Celebration, as well as its continued observance as a revered tradition at Midwinter.

As the Director of the Arthur Ashe J. Foreign Policy Library, TransAfrica Forum, Orange coordinated lectures, special events, and receptions highlighting Africa and the diaspora. In addition to directing OLOS, Orange also served as the ALA staff liaison to the Social Responsibilities (SRRT), the Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual, and Transgender (GLBTRT), and the Ethnic and Multicultural Information Exchange (EMIERT) round tables for over a decade. Nominator Dr. Lori Mestre wrote that “even in retirement Orange continues her advocacy such as providing guidance and training to library staff in St. Maarten in 2015.” Mestre also noted that “through all of Orange’s challenging work, dedication, and efforts, she remains humble, poised and positive, a true inspiration for us all.”

“Satia Marshall Orange is a part of a long tradition of leadership in black women’s history that includes Anna Julia Cooper, Ida B. Wells-Barnett, and Josephine St. Pierre Ruffin so eloquently described by historians Dr. Clark Hine and Dr. Paula Giddings,” said EMIERT Chair Dr. Leslie Campbell Hine. “EMIERT is pleased to honor her more than 30 years of work on behalf of traditionally underserved populations and the field of librarianship.”

As recipient of the 2017 Award, Orange will receive a commemorative plaque and a $500 honorarium to be presented during EMIERT President’s Program, “Integrating Diversity Initiatives and Community Engagement: The Human Library at Penn State University,” Saturday at 3:00 p.m., room W187b.

Library Instruction Round Table to Focus on Student Success

Please join the Library Instruction Round Table (LIRT) on Saturday from 1:00 – 2:30 p.m. for the panel entitled “From Kindergartners to Collegians: Helping Students Make the Grade.” As librarianship and library instruction continue to evolve across educational settings, library curricular embeddedness is quickly becoming the norm. This presentation will focus on the new fundamentals of library instruction and the growth of liaison responsibilities in various library settings. Discover how to teach information literacy and subject-specific learning skills to an array of patron groups, and learn how librarians can shape and enhance learning goals beyond library walls. As always, the LIRT conference program seeks to have a lively presentation by speakers who will share experiences to inform learning in all types of libraries.

The event will be held in McCormick Place, W184a.

United for Libraries and GLBTRT to Address LGBTQ Literature

United for Libraries and GLBTRT will present “Out and Proud: LGBTQ Literature” on Saturday from 10:30 – 11:30 a.m., at McCormick Place, W190a.

Meet authors Eileen Myles, Rakesh Satyal, Joseph Cussara, and Sophie Yanow, who will discuss their latest books and their lives as writers. A book signing will follow. This program will be moderated by Barbara Hoffert, editor of Library Journal’s Prepub Alerts.

Eileen Myles (Afterglow (a Dog Memoir), Grove Press/Perseus, September 2017) is the author of 19 books, including I Must Be Living Twice: New & Selected Poems, and a 2015 reissue of O.tech. Girls, Myles is the recipient of a Guggenheim Fellowship in nonfiction and four Lambda Book Awards.

Rakesh Satyal (No One Can Pronounce My Name, Picador/Macmillan, May 2017) is the author of the novel Blue Bay, which won the 2010 Lambda Literary Award for Gay Debut Fiction. Satyal was a recipient of a 2010 Fellowship in Fiction from the New York Foundation for the Arts and two fellowships from the Norman Mailer Writers’ Colony. A graduate of Princeton University, he has taught in the publishing program at New York University.

Joseph Cassara (The House of Impossible Beauties, Ecco/HarperCollins, February 2018) was born and raised in New Jersey. He holds degrees from Columbia University and the Iowa Writers’ Workshop and has been a writing fellow at the Fine Arts Work Center in Provincetown, Mass.

Sophie Yanow (War of Streets and Houses, Uncivilized Books/Consortium, 2014) is a cartoonist, translator, and educator. War of Streets and Houses was nominated for the Doug Wright Spotlight Award and the Ignatz Award for Outstanding Graphic Novel. She teaches at the Center for Cartoon Studies in Vermont.

Building Awards to be Considered

The ALA/IIDA Library Interior Design Awards honor international excellence in library interior design. Any interior designer, interior architect, or architect may submit a library interior design project completed after October 1, 2015. Winning projects will be published in Contract and American Libraries magazines, showcased on the IIDA website, and featured on IIDA social media to over 300,000 followers. Winners and their clients will be honored at the 2018 ALA Annual Conference in New Orleans from June 21 – 26, 2018.

The competition opens for entries on Monday, January 22, 2018. For more information, please contact Liz Moran, design competition director, at lmoran@iida.org, or visit the IIDA website at iida.org.

Dr. Carla Hayden Kicks off Yearlong Celebration of the Spectrum 20th Anniversary on Sunday

The 14th Librarian of Congress Carla Hayden, the first woman and the first African American to lead the national library, will headline a special kick-off celebration cocktail hour marking the 20th Anniversary of the Spectrum Scholarship Program. “Spectrum at 20: A Celebration of Community” will be held from 4:00 – 6:00 p.m. on Sunday at the 19 East Event Gallery located at 19 E. 21st Street.

The minimum donation of the $20 ticket purchase includes hors d’oeuvres and cash bar. Tickets may be purchased at the ALA Registration Desk in McCormick Place West until 5:00 p.m. on Saturday. All proceeds support ALA’s Spectrum Scholarship Program.

Through Spectrum, more than 1,000 library leaders of color have benefited from scholarships, community building, and opportunities to collectively advance equity, diversity, and inclusion.

The anniversary theme is Spectrum’s 20 Years: A Celebration of Community. To support the celebration, volunteers are serving as Cohort Champions for each of our 20 years to help strengthen and broaden connections within our Spectrum Community. These alumni are giving back by rebuilding connections within each cohort, expanding local networks of librarians of color, and supporting one another in raising visibility and funds for the Spectrum Scholarship Program. Learn more at spectrum.ala.org.

Financial Literacy in Public Libraries

In June of 2015, the American Library Association (ALA) Office for Research and Evaluation (ORE) and the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) Investor Education Foundation began collaborating on a research project aimed at understanding and advancing U.S. public libraries’ capacity to support patron financial capabilities. The project was composed of a national survey that assessed financial literacy resources, educational programming, and expertise in U.S. public libraries and an accompanying benchmark guide for comparing public library personal finance collections. In this session, project supervisor Robert Ganem (FINRA), research coordinator Rachel Wedeward (ALA Office for Research and Evaluation), and survey administrator and analyst Kelsey Henke (ALA Office for Research and Evaluation) will discuss the results of the project’s national survey and debut the personal finance resource guide.

Meet the 2017 Class of Emerging Leaders at a Poster Session

Attendees of the American Library Association’s 2017 Annual Conference in Chicago are invited to meet the 2017 class of Emerging Leaders (EL) at a poster session and reception at 2:30 p.m. today in McCormick Place, room W190b. The ALA 2017 class of EL will showcase their final projects at the poster session. All are welcomed and encouraged to attend. Light refreshments will be served.

The poster session will be the culminating event for this class of Emerging Leaders. Since the ALA Midwinter Meeting, the groups have been working virtually on projects related to ALA or a professional concern. These groups have been supported by ALA staff and member guides from the profession. The poster session will allow each group to showcase its creative and innovative solutions for their projects.

Participants in the EL 2017 class come from across the United States and represent a variety of types of libraries. An ALA division, round table, chapter or an affiliate organization sponsored almost 75 percent of the participating Emerging Leaders. The EL program began as one of ALA Past-President Leslie Burger’s six initiatives. ALA has committed to making this program available annually for young and/or new library workers.

Come out today to meet, congratulate, and encourage the 2017 Class of Emerging Leaders.

Beta Phi Mu Reception to Honor Dr. Blanche Woolls

Dr. Blanche Woolls is truly a library luminary who has supported school libraries, library education, and people throughout the world. She is being honored at the Beta Phi Mu reception on Saturday 3:30 – 5:30 p.m. at the Hyatt Regency Chicago. (This is the co-headquarters hotel on Wacker Ave., #1 on the ALA map) in room Columbus GH, Ballroom Level, East Tower. The presentation will be made after the business meeting.

A recent book has been published in Wooll’s honor by Rowman & Littlefield as part of the Beta Phi Mu Scholar Series. It includes contributions from the foremost authorities on school librarianship.

Join the Games and Gaming Roundtable for Gaming and Play Events

ALA Play

Friday night starts with a bang at ALA Play from 7:30 – 10:00 p.m. at the Hilton Chicago, Stevens Center, Salon A. This free event has grown to include a STEM and Maker playground with 20 tables of resources and activities. There will also be game publisher demos, open gaming, drop-in league play, and drop-in RPGs! You can learn to paint miniatures in a Paint-and-Take session or take part in a GIANT Bloxels Video Game Design Challenge.

United for Libraries to Host Development Program on Saturday

United for Libraries will host “Board Development for Library Trustees, Friends Groups, and Foundations” on Saturday from 10:30 – 11:30 a.m. at McCormick Place West, W181a.

Board development is a key factor of success for library trustees, friends groups, and foundations. This program will feature a panel of speakers who will discuss evaluating the current composition of your board, identifying qualifications for future board members, board self-evaluation, board orientation, job descriptions, and succession planning.

Notable speakers will include:
- Lisa Kippur, executive assistant to the deans at University of Colorado Boulder Libraries.
- Paula Beswick, library consultant.
- Charity Tyler, executive director, Cedar Rapids (Iowa) Public Library Foundation.
- David Baker, JD, principal, Giving Design.
